Eaglet News

This week in Reception we have continued to practise our Nativity show; we have all worked really hard at remembering the songs, actions and lines and we are very excited to show you our final performance next week. Alfie the Elf has been writing to us every morning so we have continued to show acts of kindness towards our friends in class. We have been getting excited for Christmas Eve as we have written instructions on what we are doing on the evening for Santa. We cannot wait for him to visit!

Nursery have also been inspired by our Kindness Elves, and have been busy making Christmas cards, giving high fives and paying our friends compliments! We have been doing lots of practice in writing our names, and having a go at writing our friends' names too! It is really exciting to see the children's mark-making and letter formation develop.

Letters home (Reception)

Please be aware that the children will receive a few letters which have been put in their book bags. The letters consist of homework that can be completed over the Christmas break, new cvc words for the children to practise and suggestions of observations that can be uploaded onto tapestry.

No observation week

The final week of the term (17th—21st) will be no observation week in early years, therefore there will not be any new observations added of your child from this week on tapestry. Please feel free to keep us updated about what your child did over the holidays.

Christmas Nativity

Please be aware that Reception and Nursery have their Nativity performances next week. The performances begin at 9:30 in the middle hall on Tuesday and Wednesday. Parents may make their way to the office after arrival to wait until the middle hall is open. If parents have prams, these will need to be kept in the office until after the show.
