Eaglet News

It has been a very busy and exciting week this week, as children met their new teachers, visited their new classrooms, and began to explore their feelings around transitioning into their new year groups. There are a few new names to remember, and the children have been diligently practicing them! We heard about some of our friends who will be heading off to new schools, and got our first look at some of the new friends who will be joining us.

There were other big changes happening in Reception this week as our butterflies finally emerged from their chrysalides, to the great delight of us all! The children were full of wonder and questions about the butterflies, and we all learnt something new! Did you know that butterflies love bananas?

Library Books and Reading Folders

Please note all library books MUST be returned by Monday 17th July, otherwise there may be a charge incurred. Also, Reception parents please note that due our trip on Friday, reading books will be changed this Thursday 13th July. This will be the LAST book change of the year.

All reading books AND READING FOLDERS must be returned by Monday 17th July.

Entry into School Building

Parents are politely reminded that they are not permitted into the building in the mornings.

We still have a high number of parents entering to give teachers non-urgent messages.

Please use your Home/School diary which is intended for this purpose.

Suncream and School Caps

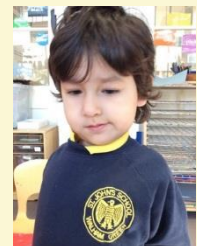

As the hotter weather approaches, please ensure you put suncream on your child every morning, and send them in with their school cap. Children's play will be restricted to shaded areas unless they have a cap on. If you'd like your child to have another application of suncream, please supply a bottle of suncream with a NAMED STICKER on.

Reception trip to Natural History Museum

Children need a packed lunch and school cap for their trip on Friday. A polite reminder that nuts, chocolate, sweets and crisps are not permitted. Can parents also be reminded that plain water only is allowed in school – please no flavoured water.
